Printing with a Switching-Hotend is an exciting new frontier, although software and electronics setup are fairly simple and we are seeing great results here at E3D we want to be up-front about the status of this product. We are still developing the best techniques, settings and procedures to get beautiful reliable prints every time. Cyclops takes some extra learning and getting used to and may require a little tinkering and tuning to get awesome prints. If you're looking for a more conventional system then Chimera may be a better fit for your needs.

Add Multi-Extrusion capability to your machine with the easiest, most versatile, and highest performance HotEnds in the industry. E3D has a range of modular systems which give you the ability to create printers that can print a wide range of colours and materials in a single object, in one print.

All our multiple extrusion systems share some core design principles:

Our signature E3D All-Metal, high performance design for fantastic prints in every material, every time.

Easy to level nozzles make getting started in dual extrusion easier than ever before.

Absolute minimum size and weight, won't weigh down your machine or reduce printing performance
